How Can We Sustain and Expand the Contributions of Globally Engaged U.S. Companies?

U.S. companies operate in a highly competitive global marketplace. As cross-border trade and investment have increased, the field of competition has widened in many industries. In this environment, differences in national tax systems can be a significant factor in where companies choose to invest.

Unfortunately, the current U.S. corporate tax system has become an outlier relative to the tax systems of our trading partners. The United States maintains the highest statutory corporate tax rate among OECD countries. In addition, the United States still uses an antiquated system of worldwide taxation, which imposes a second round of taxes on foreign earnings for U.S. companies.

Reforming the U.S. corporate tax system by reducing corporate tax rates and revising international tax rules would make the United States a more attractive location for companies to invest and base their global headquarters, while also encouraging them to return their foreign earnings for investment throughout the United States, including Iowa. Ultimately, a more competitive U.S. corporate tax system is critical to sustaining and expanding the contributions that globally engaged U.S. companies make to Iowa’s economy, local communities, and working families.
